Interest Former.—This is the beginning, in some localities, of the season for todder pulling. It should not, however, be gathered too early. Watch for the skriukage of the grain; when that has commenced then pullyour fedder. Valuable as the folder crop is, it is yet not so important us the cord cree, and some of important us the corticry, and some of thad better be left to dry on the stalk, taan be prematurely gathered to the injury of the grain. We find in an old number of the Farmers' Register (Mr. Rullin's) a contunnication from a Mary-land farmer, on the subject of "The loss caused by stripping coru fodder," from white we extract the following:

"In year number for August, you recommended to the farmers who had not aski sed themselves of the mischlef done by shipping Indian corn of its green leaves, to test it by experiment. This have best for done, and have no shouth on the subject. I now gather only a few blades, which I find useful as a change for my horses. I have, from observation, formed the opinion that where corn has an early vigorroris growth, it a propilous season, that the injury done by stripping is an early vigorroris growth, it a propilous season, that the injury done by stripping is an serious; but retarded in its growth by a cool summer or a dry season, I believe that more loss is sustained than would pay the taxes in Maryland." Mr. Ruffit says in one of its editablish that "the loss of corn in cars broken eff in gathering fodder's very great, but cannot well be estimated by itself. There is another expecse, how there is another expecse, how itself. inportant us the corn crep, and some of thad better be left to dry on the stalk.

DRVING APPLES.-Coleman's Rural World gives the following directions ter drying apples:

bried apples are used as a necessity in the place of green apples. They are not to be compared, of course, with the fresh judy truit. This is in consequence of an error on the part of those who dry them. dimost any apples are taken to dry. Venid a man take such to eat—to use ve are also somewhat careless, and con-blerably ignorant. We are not aware, or instance, or do not realize it, that an spple dried is still much the same that it was before it was dried, excepting the juice. Thus a sour apple will be sour when dried, fully as sour as in its green when dried, fully as sour as in its green when dried, fully as sour as in its green state. It bard and lumature those qualities will be immeasurably retained. If your apple is sweet, you get it sweet, dried. It it is a good diavor when green that flavor will be retained when dried. It the fruit is mellow when dried it will retain its mellowness. The best dried applus, perhaps, that are used are the Lopius Spitzenbergs—not when male the construction of a can be considered to the source of the state on the shore. Lopus Spizenbergs—not when maile to as seen as picked, but when in a mellow state, as they will be in February or March, or earlier if the season is warm, Maile then, when a fly has no access to them, and, properly dried, there is nothing finer than the perfection of the green fruit itsell. Thus winter drying of fruit is better than when made earlier. The dried fruit then is clean, bright and mellow, and not harsh and sour—not tasting LIME, CEMENT & PLASTER.

with the desired too slow and permitted to get damp during the process as as the case samewhat at nights in the absence of tire), or after, for fruit when dry must be kept dry.

Treated thus, dried fruit is but little beow fresh fruit. Try it.

Dried apples may be made of an excelent flavor in the following manner: After slawing them, or cooking them down to a soft mass, add to tew influtes before taking them up a lemon or two, sliced dith, and stir well into the mass. Same persons who were unacquainted with his Land Plaster, &c. persons who were unacquainted with this method, took them for some very superior fruit. It makes a nice sauce for the supper or breakinst table. PITKIN, WIARD & CO., Supper or breakfirst table.

heard a successful raiser and marketer of peaches say, that by thinning the crep to abant one-third or one-fourth its they cents per bushel, while he said a bein readily at a dollar and a helf. A trees that overbear, and a lithat have defective fruit, either from the attacks of it see to or otherwise, will be much improve in the quality of their crops by limed the ming-renembering always to pic off the poorest specimens and leave them they are the same corn, which the noting—remembering ulways to pick of the poorest specimens and leave the bet. Even the apple crop, which is cheaper and more abundant than most others, should not be neglected. If any one who doubts will remember for a moment that an overloaded tree has to be tinally picked by band, he will see the propriety of doing a part of his picking so early in the season that the portion left may b' improved by the operation.

Suppose, for example, that n tree has at the precent moment three thousand growing spides upon it and that two thousand are small or seabby, or infested by the apple worm or stung by the curcuito. It he allows these three thousand all to grow, they will crowd each other, and mone of them will be large and fine flavored. Yet, if suffered to remain, they must be all finally hand picked, and carefully let down and carried in baskets. Now, instead of this laborious process, let the owners pick off two thousand poor ones, witch, requiring no care to keep from bruising, may be done with great rapidity. The remaining thousand, which will the n have a chause to swell up he size and become perfect in flavor, may be gathered when mature with far less trouble than the original three thousand betthe experiment to made now in season.—Country Gentleman.

Profits of Farmino,—We often hear it remarked that there is no profit in farming. Well, Itthere be no peculiary profit beyond a good living though this is seldent the case now), there is pleasure, and we know of no more rational way of enjoying the competency which a man may have obtained by his industry and embellishing the earth, improving and embellishing the earth, improving and increasing its products, and thus adding to the aggregate of human happiness. A gentleman farmer—and all tarmers are or should be be gentlemen—belongs to an order of mibility, that is not individed to kings and princes for its institution, and may, if he chouses, be tanked among the greatest senefactors of the human race.

Houses' Talls,—We are told by a PROFITS OF FARMING .- We often hear l

Hoises' Tails.—We are told by promitent dealer in fine horses that it tulient to find horses with actural talk that these who raise them for salecut an pul and cault the tails of the horses tilt is next to impossible to till an order for a lorse with a natural, full, and gracefiall. He says nothing is more adulted a horse by those who pay laney prices fancy horses to ride and drive lu citillant these caudle uppendages, and the breeders would consult their own intests by refraining from destroying the as they do the further says he has seenal orders for tails, as this was the on direction given, and be hes not been all tire floring iven, and be has not been all o tind them.

Signs of Rain.—Just before rain flowers smell stronger and sweeter, because the vapors of the air prevent the scented particles of their perfume from ascending, as they would in a drier atmosphere. Instead of rising above the earth, the odor a disseminated by the moisture. Because the plants are stronger in frugrance just before a fall of rain, we see horses stretch out their necks and suff the air in a peculiar magner. A dimais are inore observat manuar. Animals are more observog than men, and uature speaks to them i a silent manner. They thus are able i prognosticate the coming storm with merring certainty, while man often benuls bewilder d and lost in doubt.

APPLES FOR Cows.—Ripe and mellow an lest led carefully to cows will produce an extra secretion of mak. Sweet apples are doubtless preterable for this purpose to sour; yet the latter, when mit too acid, are a valuable leed, and should be given in small quantities as long as they can be preserved sound and free from rot. To apply the produce of the orchard in this way is much more economical than to make it into cider, which, as a beverage to be drunk commonly, either at meals or other times, often produces very unpleasant consequences, but rarely, it ever, does much good.
